

SHORT BIO

Ilario Meandri is a research fellow at the Department of the Humanities of the University of Turin. After gaining a degree in Communication, with a thesis in ethnomusicology and information technology concerning the digital translation of the Hornbostel-Sachs systematics, he completed his PhD at the Universities of Milan and Turin. Ilario Meandri brings research on classical topics of ethnomusicology together with the development of advanced technologies involving documentation and analysis of sound repertoires (immersive audio recording, analysis through re-synthesis, virtual instrument planning). His research has been published by the most prominent national and international editors in the discipline (Libreria Musicale Italiana, Kaplan, University of Illinois Press, Forum).

As an ethnomusicologist, he has carried out fieldwork in the following areas:

1. Kosovo (Djacova, Prizren), Macedonia (Skopje, Šuto Orizari), Central Macedonia and Thrace (Dendropotamos-Thessaloniki, Komotini, Iraklia), concerning narrative song in Albanian and Romany repertoires, both feminine (for two frame drums and voices – Kajda) and masculine (for surne and davul), participating in the research team coordinated by Prof. Nico Staiti, University of Bologna, as supervisor of field recordings.
2. Research activity concerning carnival traditions and festive rituals involving musical ensembles with military origins (in Val d'Ossola and Canavese) in the context of alpine festive rituals. Five-year fieldwork dedicated to the Ivrea Carnival and the musical ensembles with military origins in festive rituals in the Ivrea Carnival, with responsibilities involving fieldwork coordination.
3. Ceriana (in the province of Imperia), research on orally transmitted para-liturgical polivocality, with a specific historical enquiry on the interaction between confraternity song and the semi-learned practices of local organists in Ceriana.
4. From 2008 to 2011, collaboration in the 2008 PRIN project entitled: "Music, transvestism and inversion between oral and written musical traditions", acting as a member of the University of Turin research team, coordinated by Febo Guizzi ("Constructing chaos and self-affirmation: from the carnival to the movements, following sound and transvestism"), with tasks involving fieldwork coordination.
5. Since 2012, he has collaborated in the 2010-2011 PRIN project entitled: "Processes of transformation in oral tradition music from 1900 to the present day. Historical research and enquiry into contemporary musical practices", as a member of the University of Turin research team, coordinated by Febo Guizzi, with responsibilities involving fieldwork coordination and transcription and analysis of vocal and instrumental repertoires of refugees from Posavina.

He has furthermore carried out extensive ethnomusicological studies on film soundtracks in mainstream contemporary North American cinema and the worldwide circulation of musical topoi coming from Hollywood cinema, with a specific focus on identifying musical and narrative topoi and patterns, and their political and communicational use, applying an ethnographic approach to the profession of the Hollywood composer. A professional member of the SMPTE (Society for Motion Picture and Television Engineers), he has carried out pioneering work on the history of production techniques and sound recording in Italy from the post-War period to the present day, applying innovative methodologies to a systematic research on oral sources. He has furthermore carried out extensive work on techniques in restoring and analysing sound products, and with respect to these topics he regularly participates in the most prominent international conferences (MAMI - New York, MAM - Music and Media, NECS - European Network for Cinema and Media Studies), for which he has organised panels in collaboration with American and British researchers. On these same subjects, he has organised numerous national and international conferences. He has recently joined the "Collaborative Network of Researchers in Experimental Fields Related to Film Music", founded by Siu-Lan Tan, an experimental psychologist at Kalamazoo College. The Ugo and Olga Levi Foundation in Venice, as recognition of the academic value of his work in this field of research, has financed the ICSA (Italian Cinema Sound Archives) project, a study dedicated to the recovery and promotion of sound archives in Italian cinema. He is an expert user (AVID certificate) of AVID Pro-Tools systems and cinematographic sound post-production instruments, giving specific attention to restoring and digitalising tape repertoires of significant ethnomusicological value.

Ilario Meandri unites his activity in research with a high proficiency in the use of new technologies and a passion for story-telling and theatrical directing. He is the author of radio dramas and theatrical texts including Genova 2001 - G8 (2007, Teatro Palladium, Rome), of which he was also director. In 2011 he published, with Alessandro Baricco, Moby Dick (Fandango, Rome), the theatrical text for a performance produced by Romaeuropa Festival (2008 Auditorium Parco della Musica, Rome) and directed by Gabriele Vacis.
